The Hon. A. W. Dana, well known in Barre as a former principal of Goddard seminary, and at present district judge of Topeka, Kansas, has this to say of Prof. Blanchard's work after hearing him in Topeka. "Shakespeare's great plays depend so little upon scenic effects that, in Mr. Blanchard's recitals, the audience misses neither scenery or recital time. In some respects such a presentation by a master is superior to a presentation by a theatrical company. Usually not more than two stars are found in a company, while in Mr. Blanchard's impersonations, a master recites the major portions of the play, and in turn, takes the parts of all the important characters." All lovers of the good things in literature should remember that Mr. Blanchard presents "The Merchant of Venice" at the Universalist church next Monday evening at 8 o'clock. Admission 35 cents.
